BONES OF HEROES WILL BE REMOVED

GENERAL NETTLETON'S EFFORT ROUSES WAR DEPARTMENT

skeletons of American Soldiers Who Served Under Taylor, Now Bleaching at Point Isabel to be Placed in National Cemetery at Brownsville.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 .- The fact that the skeletons of a number of soldiers of General Taylor's army, who died and were buried near Point Isabel near the beginning of the Mexican war in 1847, had never been removed, and are now exposed to the view by reason of the washing away of the embankment under which they were buried, has been called to the attention of President Roosevelt, by Gen. A. B. Nettleton, U. S. A., retired, who is now at Brownsville. It is learned that there were about 130 soldiers under Gen. Taylor who either died of disease while encamped detachable tonneau, runabout back at Point Isabel, or were killed in battle or skirmish near there, their bodies having been interred under some breastworks which had been erected by the army. These bodies, it seems were never removed, and the report now received is to the effect that the bones have been exposed by the gradual washing away of theembankment, being exposed to sun and rain, and that even vandal relic hunters have been carrying away the bones, which they had dug or raked out of the loose earth. It is not understood just why these remains were not removed to the National Cemetery at Brownsville, as the war department had contracted for the removal and interment of the bodies of all soldiers who had fallen in battle or died in that section surrounding Brownsville, and their interment in the National cemetery. These bodies were undoubtedly accidentally overlooked. President Roosevelt at once re-ferred General Nettleton's letter to the war department, and the matter will be attended to as it should be. Orders will probably be issued for the removal of the remains to the cemetery at Brownsville.
